This remarkable speech was delivered during an I am an American Day gathering in New York by Harold Ickes, President Franklin Roosevelt's Secretary of the Interior. It came at a perilous moment in history, May of 1941, when Adolf Hitler and the Nazis seemed headed toward possible world domination.

By this time, countries that had fallen to the Nazis included Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, and areas in North Africa. Airfields and cities in England were now under ferocious air attack from the German Luftwaffe while wolf-packs of Nazi U-boats attempted to blockade the British Isles.

Many Americans, however, still questioned the wisdom and necessity of direct U.S. involvement in the European war. Pacifist sentiment was steadily growing, while at the same time Fascism was sometimes referred to as the "wave of the future" by respected Americans, buoyed in part by the ceaseless highly effective anti-democratic propaganda emanating from the Fascist countries of Europe including Germany.

In this speech, Harold Ickes counters that propaganda, defines what it means to be a free American, and offers a blunt assessment of the perilous future the United States would face standing alone against a victorious Hitler.

I want to ask a few simple questions. And then I shall answer them.

What has happened to our vaunted idealism? Why have some of us been behaving like scared chickens? Where is the million-throated, democratic voice of America?

For years it has been dinned into us that we are a weak nation; that we are an inefficient people; that we are simple-minded. For years we have been told that we are beaten, decayed, and that no part of the world belongs to us any longer.

Some amongst us have fallen for this carefully pickled tripe. Some amongst us have fallen for this calculated poison. Some amongst us have begun to preach that the "wave of the future" has passed over us and left us a wet, dead fish.

They shout—from public platforms in printed pages, through the microphones—that it is futile of the future." They cry that we Americans, we free Americans nourished on Magna Carta at Independence, hold moth-eaten ideas. They exclaim that there is no room for free men in the only the slaves will inherit the earth. America—the America of Washington and Jefferson: Walt Whitman—they say, is waiting for the undertaker and all the hopes and aspirations that making of America are dead too.

However, my fellow citizens, this is not the real point of the story. The real point—the shameful of us are listening to them and some of us almost believe them.
I say that it is time for the great American people to raise its voice and cry out in mighty trium American. And why it is that only Americans, with the aid of our brave allies--yes, let's call the British, can and will build the only future worth having. I mean a future, not of concentration physical torture and mental straitjackets, not of sawdust bread or of sawdust Caesars--I mean men will live free lives in dignity and in security.

This tide of the future, the democratic future, is ours. It is ours if we show ourselves worthy of our heritage.

But make no mistake about it; the tide of the democratic future is not like the ocean tide--reg inevitable. Nothing in human affairs is mechanical or inevitable. Nor are Americans mechanica human indeed.

What constitutes an American? Not color nor race nor religion. Not the pedigree of his family birth. Not the coincidence of his citizenship. Not his social status nor his bank account. Not his profession. An American is one who loves justice and believes in the dignity of man. An Americ fight for his freedom and that of his neighbor. An American is one who will sacrifice property, order that he and his children may retain the rights of free men. An American is one in whose the immortal second sentence of the Declaration of Independence.

Americans have always known how to fight for their rights and their way of life. Americans ar
They fight joyously in a just cause.

We Americans know that freedom, like peace, is indivisible. We cannot retain our liberty if thr world is enslaved. Brutality, injustice and slavery, if practiced as dictators would have them, u systemically, in the long run would destroy us as surely as a fire raging in our nearby neighb burn ours if we didn't help to put out his.

If we are to retain our own freedom, we must do everything within our power to aid Britain. Y every thing to restore to the conquered peoples their freedom. This means the Germans too.

Such a program, if you stop to think, is selfishness on our part. It is the sort of enlightened self the wheels of history go around. It is the sort of enlightened selfishness that wins victories.

Do you know why? Because we cannot live in the world alone, without friends and without alli be defeated, then the totalitarian undertaker will prepare to hang crepe on the door of our ow

Perhaps you wonder how this could come about? Perhaps you have heard "them"--the waver with calculated malice, that even if Britain were defeated we could live alone and defend ourse even against the whole world.

I tell you that this is a cold blooded lie.

We would be alone in the world, facing an unscrupulous military-economic bloc that would do all of Africa, most of Asia, and perhaps even Russia and South America. Even to do that, we w most of our national income on tanks and guns and planes and ships. Nor would this be all. We perpetually as an armed camp, maintaining a huge standing army, a gigantic air force, two vast cou not do this without endangering our freedom, our democracy, our way of life.

Perhaps such is the America "they"--the wavers of the future--foresee. Perhaps such is the Aviator, with his contempt for democracy, would prefer. Perhaps such is the America that a c desires. Perhaps such is the America that a certain mail order executive longs for.

But a perpetually militarized, isolated and impoverished America is not the America that our f buil

It is not the America that has been the dream and the hope of countless generations in all part It is not the America that one hundred and thirty million of us would care to live in.

The continued security of our country demands that we aid the enslaved millions of Europe--v Germany--to win back their liberty and independence. I am convinced that if we do not embark on such a program we will lose our own freedom.

We should be clear on this point. What is convulsing the world today is not merely another old-fashioned war. It is a counter revolution against our ideas and ideals, against our sense of justice and our human values.

Three systems today compete for world domination. Communism, fascism, and democracy are struggling for social-economic-political world control. As the conflict sharpens, it becomes clear that the other two, fascism and communism, are merging into one. They have one common enemy, democracy. They have one common goal, the destruction of democracy.

This is why this war is not an ordinary war. It is not a conflict for markets or territories. It is a war for the possession of the souls of men.

This is why the British are not fighting for themselves alone. They are fighting to preserve free society. For the moment, the battleground is the British Isles. But they are fighting our war; they are in our trenches that are also our front-line trenches.

In this world war of ideas and of loyalties we believers in democracy must do two things. We must unite our forces to form one great democratic international. We must offer a clear program to freedom-loving peoples throughout the world.

Freedom-loving men and women in every land must organize and tighten their ranks. The masses must be helped to fight their oppressors and conquerors.

We, free, democratic Americans are in a position to help. We know that the spirit of freedom that men have fought and bled for freedom since time immemorial. We realize that the liberty-loving people are only temporarily enslaved. We do not doubt that the Italian people are looking forward to the appearance of another Garibaldi. We know how the Poles have for centuries maintained a heroic resistance against tyranny. We remember the brave struggle of the Hungarians under Kossuth and other national heroes.

The heroic figure of Masaryk and the gallant fight for freedom of the Czech people. The story of the Serbs' blows for liberty and independence is a saga of extraordinary heroism. Twice, at Thermopylae, as they have in the past. The annals of our American sister-republics, too, contain freedom-inspiring exploits. The noble figure of Simon Bolivar, the great South American liberator, has naturally been compared with that of George Washington.

Destroy a whole generation of those who have known how to walk with heads erect in God's free air, and the next generation will rise against the oppressors and restore freedom. Today in Europe, the Nazi Attila may gloat that he has destroyed democracy. He is wrong. In small farmhouses all over Central Europe, in the shops of Germany and Italy, on the docks of Holland and Belgium, freedom still lives in the hearts of men. It will endure like a hardy tree gone into the wintertime, awaiting the spring.

And, like spring, spreading from the South into Scandinavia, the democratic revolution will conquer lonely hearts will experience comradeship across artificial boundaries.

These men and women, hundreds of millions of them, now in bondage or threatened with slavery, will be the conquerors and our allies. They are only waiting for our leadership and our encouragement, for we can supply.

These hundreds of millions, of liberty-loving people, now oppressed, constitute the greatest sixth column. They have the will to destroy the Nazi gangsters.

We have always helped in struggles for human freedom. And we will help again. But our hundred million liberty-loving allies would despair if we did not provide aid and encouragement. The quicker we help them the sooner this dreadful revolution will be over. We cannot, we must not, we dare not delay much longer.

The fight for Britain is in its crucial stages. We must give the British everything we have. And I mean everything needed to beat the life out of our common enemy.
The second step must be to aid and encourage our friends and allies everywhere. And by ever; Europe and Asia and Africa and America.

And finally, the most important of all, we Americans must gird spiritually for the battle. We must remove uncertainty and vacillation. We must greet with raucous laughter the corroding arguments of fascists. They doubt democracy. We affirm it triumphantly so that all the world may hear:

Here in America we have something so worth living for that it is worth dying for! The so-called "future" is but the slimy backwash of the past. We have not heaved from our necks the tyrant's to stretch our necks out again for its weight. Not only will we fight for democracy, we will make fighting for. Under our free institutions, we will work for the good of mankind, including Hitler Germany, so that all may have plenty and security.

We American democrats know that when good will prevails among men there will be a world of security.

In the words of Winston Churchill, "Are we downhearted," No, we are not! But someone is downhearted! Witness the terrified flight of Hess, Hitler's Number Three Man. And listen to this--listen carefully:

"The British nation can be counted upon to carry through to victory any struggle that it once matter how long such a struggle may last or however great the sacrifices that may be necessary means that have to be employed; and all this even though the actual military equipment at hand inadequate when compared with that of other nations."

Do you know who wrote that? Adolf Hitler in Mein Kampf. And do you know who took down Rudolf Hess.

We will help to make Hitler's prophecy come true. We will help brave England drive back the hordes from Hell who besiege her and then we will join for the destruction of savage and blood-thirsty dictators must be firm and decisive. We must know our will and make it felt. And we must hurry.

Harold Ickes - May 18, 1941